

CEN Practice Test Questions and Answers

1. Preload describes:

- A) The pressure in the arterial system that the heart must overcome to pump the blood
- B) The volume of blood entering the left side of the heart
- C) The volume of blood entering the right side of the heart
- D) The pressure in the venous system that the heart must overcome to pump the blood

2. What is the emergency treatment for ovarian torsion?

- A) IV antibiotics and observation
- B) Emergent surgical detorsion
- C) Anticoagulation therapy
- D) Hormonal suppression therapy

3. What is the Pediatric Assessment Triangle (PAT) composed of?

- A) Heart rate, respiratory rate, and blood pressure
- B) Appearance, work of breathing, and circulation to skin
- C) GCS, AVPU, and pupil response
- D) Oxygen saturation, temperature, and mental status

4. The Glasgow Coma Scale (GCS) assesses which three components?

- A) Pupil reactivity, verbal response, motor response
- B) Eye opening, verbal response, motor response
- C) Eye opening, pupil reactivity, verbal response
- D) Respiratory effort, eye opening, motor response

Answers: 1-C 2-B 3-B 4-B

For More CEN Questions and Answers FREE, CEN Online Prep Training,
CEN Exam, CEN Study Guide, CEN Flashcards, CEN Quizzes visit:

CEN Practice Test