

OCM - Oracle Certified Master Practice Test Questions and Answers

1. In Oracle RAC, what does Cache Fusion do?

- A) Merges UNDO segments across all nodes into a single tablespace
- B) Transfers data blocks between node buffer caches over the private interconnect to avoid disk reads
- C) Fuses the redo streams from all instances into a single redo log
- D) Merges duplicate index entries across RAC instances

2. What is a Materialized View Log used for in Oracle?

- A) Auditing DML on the base table
- B) Supporting fast refresh of materialized views
- C) Capturing DDL changes for replication
- D) Storing execution plans for complex views

3. What does the V$SQL view primarily contain in Oracle?

- A) Session wait events
- B) Cursor statistics and SQL text for statements in the shared pool
- C) Historical AWR snapshots
- D) Active transaction undo information

4. What is the purpose of the ROWID pseudocolumn in Oracle?

- A) Unique identifier for each row that encodes its physical storage location
- B) A sequential number assigned at insert time
- C) A hash of the primary key columns
- D) A pointer to the corresponding UNDO record

Answers: 1-B 2-B 3-B 4-A

For More OCM - Oracle Certified Master Questions and Answers FREE, OCM - Oracle Certified Master Online Prep Training, OCM - Oracle Certified Master Exam, OCM - Oracle Certified Master Study Guide, OCM - Oracle Certified Master Flashcards, OCM - Oracle Certified Master Quizzes visit:

OCM - Oracle Certified Master Practice Test